Registration

After you click register you will be brought to this page.

It is a fairly common registration process. It does require your full name (first and last), utility name, and email address for verification. These fields will not be revealed to the public. They are only for moderators to see for the verification process.

Once you have finished registering, click the submit button.

It will take you to a page that says you need to verify your email, and you are waiting for approval. Check your email and verify your email address. Until you are approved, you can only view the forum, you will not be able to reply or post new topics.

E-mail

Here is what the email option looks like.

By using the email option, your email will be shared with the other user. Email doesn't have as many options as private message. You are only given space to type your message to a single individual.
